Indonesians

This is a small series of portraits taken in early 2024 in Jakarta, Bali and Tanah Toraja, Sulawesi. Indonesia is a nation of 12,000 islands, and its people and customs are as varied as its geography would suggest. But there is one common factor, and that is the warmth and the kindness of its people everywhere in the archipelago. This spirit inevitably comes shining through anywhere a portrait is taken. Some of my best friends were from Indonesia, and their spirit of freedom, faith and kindness rests firmly in this heart of mine.
