Celebrating Rembrandt

Celebrating Rembrandt

Rembrandt was born in Leiden. The city is proud of Rembrandt and wants the world to know it.

Leiden hosted a series of Rembrandt days on the 13th and 14th of July 2019 to celebrate the 350th anniversary of the birth of Rembrandt. For the celebration, the Pieters quarter was transformed into an "authentic as possible" 17th century setting, complete with several hundred actors and actresses, historical sketches and period decorations.

A great Historical Theater was put on by hundreds of volunteers who sewed clothing, made sets and props, and wrote, directed and acted in the different street plays. This series presents photos taken from several of the different street plays presented during the Rembrandt days celebration.

