M in the House

This is a series made from photoshoots with "M", an Irish model in early 2020. Our house was used as the background for the shoots, and M was asked to relax and to make our house her own.

During the shoots, M and I meandered from room to room, as she would strike poses in the different nooks and crannies of the house. She was particularly good at striking poses that were serene, sometimes fun and yet also quite relaxed, even when she was outside in the freezing cold, hanging off of a stairwell or lying aimlessly on a living room couch.

Looking back over these images, perhaps that which makes a house a home is precisely a person's ability to just let things go and relax.
