Photos of Others: A Self Portrait

Why take photos of other people---of family, friends and even complete strangers?

The answer is simple--what better way is there to capture and convey such a wide range of feelings and emotions, the raw ingredients of a portrait as I wish it could be.

The photos in this collection are mainly street photos. Some are old family photos and a small number are posed. The vast majority, however, are simply images I was fortunate enough to be there for.
