Tulip Twins

Tulip Twins

It's springtime in Holland. The tulip fields are in full bloom but the Keukenhof is closed. The tulip fields have few visitors and the tulip market has all but vanished this past week, as the world locks itself down.

In this series, photos of tulips, many taken from the Keukenhof and it's surrounding fields, are combined with images of a model, M, which were leftover from an earlier photo-shoot.

The use of recycled images is a reminder of the then and the now, and how quickly one can change into the other. The tulips and the model compliment one another and transport us to a place in our imaginations that is safe, wondrous, and full of joy.
